NEW REPUBLIC IS MAKING HEADWAY

Government of the Revolution Has Complete Control and Order is Coming Out of Chaos.

FUGITIVE ROYALTY UNDER BRITISH FLAG

The censorship at Lisbon has been relaxed somewhat and dispatches are coming more freely today from the scene of the revolution. All confirm earlier reports that the revolutionists are in complete control of the capital and that the infant republic is making progress. The republic has been proclaimed also at many points in the provinces.

Three regiments of infantry from the country districts reached Lisbon today and joined the revolutionists.

The casualties in the recent fighting are placed at 3,000.

King Manuel is the guest of Great Britain. He remains on board the imperial yacht Amelia, which arrived off Gibraltar last night. The British officials paid visits of respect to the Portuguese monarch today and surrounded his yacht with boats to safeguard the royal family. There are rumors of fighting between royalists and revolutionists at Setubal and some anxiety is felt lest a civil war develop in north Portugal, where the monarchy has a stronger hold upon the people.

Bernardo Machado, minister of foreign affairs in the provisional government of Portugal cabled today to the Associated Press at the request of Provisional President Braga, announcing that order had been restored at Lisbon and that the new republican government will immediately organize general reforms in the interest of all the people.

Much uneasiness is felt at Madrid regarding the events in Portugal on the republican cause in Spain and precautions against an outbreak have been taken.

Oporto, Oct. 7.—The republican government has been definitely established here without a struggle. The populace with unanimity received the proclamation enthusiastically.

The general commanding the local devision of the troops obeyed the instructions of the provisional government.

FLIGHT OF ROYAL FAMILY.

Lisbon, Oct. 7.—The Capital, a republican newspaper, gives the following description of the flight of the royal family:

Between 5 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning the duke of Oporto embarked on the yacht Amelia and sailed for Ericeira, a fishing town on the Atlantic coast, twenty-two miles northwest of Lisbon.

At the same time the queen mother, Amelia, left Cintra by automobile for Mafra. She was followed an hour later by the dowager queen, Maria Pia. King Manuel, after escaping by a rear door of the palace during the bombardment, went to Cintra and thence to Mafra.

At 10 o'clock the royal yacht arrived at Ericeira. In the meantime the royal family had completed the preparations for flight and escorted by twenty horsemen from the Mafra cavalry school, proceeded to Ericeira. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon they embarked upon fishing boats, accompanied by two attendants and two ladies of their court and carrying their personal baggage. The fishing boats put out to sea and at some distance from the harbor transferred their royal passengers to the yacht Amelia.

Dr. Jose Maria de Alpoim, chief of the progressive dissidents and a former minister of justice and worship, has joined the republican movement and his own party has been dissolved.

President-elect Fonseca, of Brazil, who was a guest of King Manuel when the revolution broke out, sailed for Rio Janeiro on the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo today.

Queen Mother Blamed.

According to one person who said he witnessed the embarkation of the royal family the duke of Oporto boarded the royal yacht at Cascaes weeping, and said he hated to leave his beloved country in deep pain. He complained that the downfall of the monarchy was due wholly to the fatal influence of his sister-in-law, the queen mother, and added that he had found it impossible to give his nephew, the king, liberal counsels.

The narrator said that when King Manuel and his mother boarded the yacht the king was plainly glad at having escaped. Before leaving he shook hands with the fisherfolk and appeared to be moved by their devotion. The queen mother, however, was described as being in a state of fury. According to the observer, she actually gritted her teeth and threatened vengeance on the revolutionists when the royal family returned to the throne.

AIMS OF NEW REPUBLIC.

New York, Oct. 7.—The Associated Press this morning received direct from Lisbon a dispatch from Senhor Bernado Machado, the minister of foreign affairs in the newly constituted provisional government of Portugal in which the republican leader sets forth the purpose and aims of the present government.

Senhor Machado, who speaks at the request of and for Theophile Braga, the provisional president of the new republic, cabled as follows:

"The republic of Portugal has been proclaimed by the army, the navy and the people.

"The maintenance of order is completely assured. There is general adhesion to the government in the provinces. The enthusiasm of the public is unparalleled.

"The provisional government has before it a great duty involving much work. It has in effect a country to make over. Concerning our program I can say that we will endeavor to put in operation the program of the republican party. This includes a policy of decent realization both in the local administration and in the government of the colonies.

"The financial budget is to be equalized in the general interests of the country and it will be made up with honesty and fairness. The national wealth will be developed.

"All national alliances now existing will be respected and friendly relations with all other states are desired.

Freedom of Press.

"Freedom of the press will be assured and all star chamber methods and opportunist laws will be abolished. Public instruction will be completely secularized, relieved from religious control and the religious congregations will be suppressed. We plan the establishment of a broad system of public instruction, both primary and advance under government endowment.

"The reorganization of the army and the navy whose patriotic services have been beyond all praise, will be proceeded with.

"The government has profound respect for public opinion, and it approaches its task with a high resolve to perform its duties with unfailing honesty. Its will is to serve the best interests of the country.

"The foregoing sets forth in a few words, the purpose, the aims and earnest endeavors, in these moments of anxious labor of the provisions government of Portugal.

"I send the above at the request of the president of the provisional government, Theophile Braga.

(Signed)

"BERNARDO MACHADO,
"Minster of Foreign Affairs."

WOMAN VICTIM OF A BRUTAL MURDER

Body of Well-Dressed and Refined Lady Found in Building Court.

SHE HAD BEEN BEATEN TO DEATH

New York Police Baffled by Crime—Negro Janitor Under Arrest.

New York, Oct. 7.—The mysterious murder of an unidentified woman of refined appearance in a fashionable apartment house on Riverside drive today is puzzling the police as few recent crimes have done. The woman's body was found in the court yard of the house and gave every indication that the victim had been literally beaten to death.

Her clothing was of the best quality and markings upon it showed that it had been purchased at fashionable shops, but there was nothing to give a clew to her identity. The negro elevator boy of the apartment house, Clarence Holcomb, who said he had admitted the woman to the building at an early hour today was arrested and held as a suspicious person. The police believe the woman was murdered in the bath room of a vacant apartment on the ground floor and her body pushed from the window into the court yard.

MYSTIC SHRINE IN "FREAKS OF FABLE"

Fine Banquet Later Brings Mizpah Temple's Big Show to a Close.

Storied classics of ancient mythology, depicted in massive and gorgeous tableaux, weird and fantastic in conception, rich in colorings and with trappings of regal splendor, passed in review between applauding thousands massed in the streets of Fort Wayne last night in the mardi gras pageant that formed the final public feature of two days of festivity under the auspices of Mizpah temple, Ancient Arabic Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

No such spectacle has ever before been seen in Indiana—in fact, it is doubtful if the middle west ever had opportunity to enjoy so fine a pageant. Manned by more than one hundred nobles of Mizpah temple, attired in costumes that harmonized with the individual theme, the score of great floats portrayed the freaks of fable in riotous richness of color and light and in a dazzling splendor that can hardly be overdrawn. Drawn by eighty horses, led by as many men, its pathway lighted by forty men carrying great torches and its course marked by flaming red fire carried by one hundred boys, the pageant covered an extended line of march that was a spectacular revelation from first to last.

Scene of Rare Beauty.

Advance announcement had led the public to expect much of the pageant, but it scarcely did the spectacle justice. It amply compensated for the enforced disappointment occasioned by the postponement from the previous evening on account of weather, and was a fitting finale to the big program of festivities served by Mizpah temple to its thousands of guests during the evening.

From his place in the reviewing stand at the south front of the court house Imperial Potentate Fred A. Hines expressed the opinion that the Fort Wayne pageant was more beautiful than that at the imperial council meeting at New Orleans, from which city the floats were brought to Fort Wayne. In New Orleans the pageant was given in daylight. Here the lights intensified the beauty and gorgeousness of the floats. In the audience were others who had seen the famous pageant of the Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York, and they declared that the floats were in every way equal in splendor to those seen on this historic occasion.

Banquet is Closing Feature.

Following the parade came the Shrine banquet which closed the festivities of the two-days' occasion. It was an elaborately successful function, served at the Scottish Rite cathedral, where one thousand nobles of the Mystic Shrine discussed an appetizing menu, enjoyed the music of Schlatter's big orchestra and amid the beautiful decorations and the handsome lighting of the great banquet room heard eloquent speakers heap praises and compliments upon Mizpah temple for the celebration which marked its anniversary.

During the afternoon a class of ninety-eight candidates had been added to the membership of Arabia Temple [illegible]

WOLVERINE STATE'S DEMOCRACY IS PEPPERY

Full of Fight as Shown by Aggressive Spirit of Platform.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 7.—Denunciation of the Payne tariff bill and of the congressmen from Michigan who aided in its passage, was outlined today as the strongest plank in the platform of the democratic state convention to be adopted today. The delegates expressed pleasure over what was designated by them as the evasive tactics of the republican convention in meeting the tariff issue yesterday and they prepared for a fierce onslaught on the measure and its adherents.

The promise of bi-partisan appointive boards and commissions throughout the state in the event of the democratic victory was expected to eliminate largely the state issues in the fight and center the contest on the tariff and other national measures. Vigorous charges of republican misrule in the state, which were asserted in greater part to have been exposed in the previous campaign of Lawton H. Famans, the present democratic nominee for governor, also were expected to form part of the platform. The selection of bi-partisan commissions, it was asserted, will insure a fidelity and vigilance on the part of state officials not to be obtained in any other manner.

It was not expected that the convention would develop any contests on nominees or the building of the platform.

NIGHT RIDER A WITNESS.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 7.—Accompanied by a guard of state troops Milton Oliver, self-confessed night rider, who was to have been chief witness for the state in the trial of alleged leaders of the famous raid on Hopkinsville, left today for his home near Lamasco. Oliver came here to testify last week, but the defense Wednesday obtained a continuance until the February term of court. Following Oliver's confession an attempt to assassinate him was made last May. Since then he has been guarded by state troops and the guard will be continued at his home until the February term.

HIS REASONS FOR HELPING LORIMER

Lee O'Neill Browne Has a Good Line of Dope to Explain Action.

BILLY SOMEWHAT DEMOCRATIC

Also Expected It Would Split the Republican Party in Illinois.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Lee O'Neil Browne, democratic minority leader of the Illinois house of representatives and alleged by various witnesses to have distributed several thousand dollar bribes to secure votes for Senator Lorimer, resumed his testimony before the senatorial committee.

The democratic leader, with his long, curly hair brushed back in a fashion reminiscent of William J. Bryan, talked easily.

He was asked to look at the register of the Southern hotel at St. Louis where under date of July 15, 1909, the name of Representative Robert E. Wilson, alleged "jackpot" distributor, appears. Witness declared that the register did not refresh his mind as to the date when Wilson went to the Missouri metropolis.

His letter to Representative White in which occurs the sentence, "I hope everything is all right and satisfactory" and which bears the date of July 16, 1909, witness said had no reference to any dealings between White and Wilson, but was a courteous expression of well wishing.

A Nice Discrimination.

Browne repeated that his visit to St. Louis June 21, 1909, was to discuss minority patronage. He took exception to the word "jobs" in this connection.

Witness stated he first noticed a change in the demeanor of White during the special session of the legislature of 1909. White's letter to witness in which the former told the latter not to be surprised at anything he (White) might do, Brown said he took to mean White had a fit of the blues, feeling.

POSSIBLE UNION OF TWO BRANCHES OF METHODISM

North Indiana Conference of Free Methodist Church.

At the sessions of the North Indiana conference of the Free Methodist churches this morning Rev. J. M. Kennedy, a fraternal delegate of the Indiana conference of the Wesleyan churches, was present and delivered an address and following this the conference elected Rev. S. C. Huston, of Crownpoint, Ind., as a fraternal delegate to the Wesleyan conference of Indiana to be held this month.

This fraternal spirit between the two conferences is growing rapidly and delegates in attendance at the conference here say that is an indication that the two branches of the church, long separated by minor differences, will soon be united.

The election of Rev. D. D. Marston, of Knox, Ind., as district elder, was one of the matters of business of this morning's session. His duties are to superintend the affairs of the churches in the conference. He has been the district elder for the last few years.

The principal part of the morning hours was taken up in hearing reports from the different pastors concerning the affairs of their charges. All were of an encouraging nature. The afternoon was given over to addresses delivered by different pastors.

The conference continues over Sunday, Bishop Sellew, who is presiding, delivering the sermons at the Bowser Free Methodist church Sunday morning and evening.

DIVIDES ESTATE EQUALLY.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 7.—The will of Joseph T. Irwin, the traction magnate who died last August at his summer home in Canada, was admitted to probate in the Bartholomew county court today. It equally divides his entire estate, valued at $3,000,000, between his son, William G. Irwin, and his daughter, Mrs. Linnie Irwin Sweeney, both of this city.

Mrs. Mary Mitchell has returned from Hudson, Ind., where she had been since the death of her father, Rev. F. W. Redman, and her mother, both of whom had died during the last several weeks. Her father died August 25 and her mother on September 29.

NEW NATIONALISM FOR THE CROOKED

In Speech at Bristol, Tenn., Roosevelt Defines His New Policy.

RIGHTEOUS HAVE NOTHING TO FEAR

Hundred Million Dollar Crook is the Game He is Gunning For.

Bristol, Tenn., Oct. 7.—In a speech before a great crowd here today ex-President Roosevelt warmly defended his doctrine of new nationalism. He attacked crooks, both large and small, and made a plea for a higher citizenship. The crowd was so great that Colonel Roosevelt had to fight his way from his automobile to the grandstand. Hundreds of girls from Bristol's female college in their caps and gowns gave a college yell and presented him with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

"Much obliged," Colonel Roosevelt shouted, waving his hat at the girls. "I am back among my own people," said Colonel Roosevelt. "I've come back from Africa and Europe feeling that in spite of all our shortcomings there is not another land where the average man has such a chance as he does here.

Trying to Vouchsafe Square Deal.

"All that I am trying to do is to keep this land as one in which the average man has a square deal. What I mean by the new nationalism is simply the efficient application of the old moralities to new and changed conditions.

"This country was founded for the purpose of trying to secure equality of opportunity for all men and we must try measureably to realize that ideal.

"We must try to see that in political and industrial life there is no special privileges. I do not ask that the lazy or vicious have the chance that the hard working man has. All I ask is that we try to bring about equality of opportunity."

Someone shouted, "Hurray for the man who is for the laboring man."

The crowd cheered, but Colonel Roosevelt held up his hand and said:

Wants the Bibg Crook.

"Wait a minute. "I am for the laboring man. That's true. But only if he is a straight man. My critics say that I attack only the rich men. That is not true. I'm against the little crook, but there is this distinction: The neighbors of a little crook can take care of him, but when it comes to a man with a hundred millions, he's the neighbor of all of us. He's too big game for his immediate neighbors and

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

A Disease for Which Ordinary Treatment Is Unsatisfactory.

Description of a Severe Case Which Was Readily Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The ordinary medical treatment of inflammatory rheumatism is still far from satisfactory. Most of these treatments are directed at the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. But the blood has not been purified and the rheumatism is sure to return, especially after a season of exposure to cold and dampness. For this reason sufferers from rheumatism will be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in curing this painful disease.

Francis H. Clarkson, of Archbald, Pa., was cured of a severe attack by this treatment. His case is described by his mother, Mrs. Arthur Clarkson, as follows:

"Two years ago this spring," she says, "my son, Francis, had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. After he had been under the care of a doctor for some time and had tried several remedies without getting relief, I was advised by a friend to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"When he began taking the pills he had been sick for several months. His joints were badly swollen and pained him all over his body. His legs were so swollen and painful that he couldn't stand on them for three weeks. I had him give the pills a good trial and he was entirely cured."

An attack of rheumatism is very difficult to cure so that it will stay cured. Ordinary treatment aims only to relieve the pain until the attack wears itself ont. Then it is liable to occur again and usually does, year after year.

If you have failed to find more than temporary relief from your suffering the treatment is most likely not a blood-builder and you are, therefore, not treating the cause of your trouble. You should not neglect to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but begin a course of treatment with them at once. A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing more information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood, will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

But Choice Will Not Be Made Until October 15—Driscoll is Acting Mayor.

TRY TO ANNUL DEEDS OF ELIJAH HAYS

Warsaw Man Who Gave Big Estate to Missions—Case Goes to Supreme Court.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 7.—The case of Clementine Keyes vs. William F. McDowell and others, which was tried in the circuit court here some time ago, has been filed in the supreme court of Indiana, having been appealed from the lower coourts, and the question of the title to more than $100,000 worth of real estate which was deeded to the Missionary society of the Methodist church by the late Elijah Hays, of this city, will be settled in that court.

Nearly thirty years ago Elijah Hays deed practically all his property to the missionary society, the income to be used for the education of young men at the Nicholas Lowe Theological seminary at Mercedes, Argentina, South Africa. He was then an old man, but by saving and investing the annuity paid him by the society he again amassed a small fortune, and about six years ago again deeded to the society about $20,000 worth of property to be used for the same purpose as the first fortune.

The plaintiffs in the case are heirs of the late Elijah Hays and the defendant represents the Missionary society of the Methodist church. It is claimed by the plaintiffs that Hays was of unsound mind when he made the last deeds, being 84 years of age, and the court is asked to set aside the two deeds and give the property to the heirs of Elijah Hays. The suit was decided in favor of the defendants when tried in court here.

THEATER AT WABASH.

Lease Expires Soon and Present Lessee Will Not Renew It.

Wabash, Ind., Oct. 7.—December 1 Manager Holden's lease on the Eagles' theater will expire and a new lease will be given for the theater to whoever takes the house for a series of years. Mr. Holden has stated that he will not take the house at the same figure at which it is now leased and it is questionable whether he will be a bidder or not.

He asserts that he has lost money for the past year on his old lease. Mr. Sebring, who has been local manager, will probably remain with the house and possibly may be one who would take the lease in case Mr. Holden retires.

OWNS THREE THEATERS.

Has Monopoly on Moving Picture Shows at Huntington.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 7.—Through a deal just completed one man, Ezra Rhoades, now owns all the moving picture theaters in Huntington. Not long ago he established the Palace theater here and noticing the extensive patronage that was given the other two theaters, he opened negotiations with the owners that resulted in his buying both of them. For the present, at least, all of the places of amusement will be maintained and if Mr. Rhoades, after a tryout, thinks the attendance warrants, he may keep both of the old ones going. Mr. Rhoades already owns a number of theaters in South Bend and towns in that vicinity.

IN THE CHURCHES

PASTOR IS DISAPPOINTED.

Rev. C. A. Rowand Has Not Secured Charge in California.

Disappointment has come to Rev. C. A. Rowand, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church here, for the last two years pastor of the church at Marion, Ind., who went to California recently for the health of his son and had expected to be assigned to a charge at Pomona, Cal., taking the place of Rev. A. W. Lamport, who was to have been transferred to Marion. News has been received here that Rev. Lamport has changed his mind and will remain at Pomona. Hence Rev. Rowand cannot locate in that city. Mrs. Rowand had made all the arrangements for moving from Marion to Pomona and had sold much of her household goods and crated what she wished to take with her, and was awaiting the order to start for California. The telegram announcing that Rev. Mr. Lamport had changed his mind and would not make the change was a great disappointment to her as well as to Rev. Rowand, who is in Denver and expected to start this week for Pomona, Cal., to take up his work.

PREPARING FOR A FAIR.

The St. Joseph's Catholic church at Roanoke is preparing for its fall festival, which this year will be held October 18 and 19. Arrangements have been made with members of the local churches to assist in the event, which is always one of the largest and best paying features of the church year. Fort Wayne people will also be asked to help. Rev. Joseph Schmitt is pastor of the parish.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION.

The Walther league of the Zion's Lutheran church is preparing to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the league, which is October 23. The new officers of the league are: F. A. Klein, president; Lewis Kramer, vice president; H. F. Gerdom, secretary; William Gerding, financial secretary; directors, Oscar Junge, Herman Rose and August Bickness.

BISHOP AT COLUMBIA CITY.

Rt. Rev. H. J. Alerding, the bishop of this diocese, was at Columbia City last evening as the guest of Rev. J. F. Kohl, pastor of the St. Paul's church there, and officiated at the administering of confirmation to a large class. The bishop preached the confirmation sermon. In the exercises he was assisted by Rev. E. J. Mongovan, of Arcola, and Rev. George Angermier, of Auburn.

BENEFIT OF THE CHURCH.

The women of the Trinity Episcopal church are conducting a rummage sale this week at 910 Barr street. Contributions of cast-off clothing and articles of all descriptions are asked for the sale and should be delivered to the Barr street address.

ECKLES HURT IN COLLISION.

Court Bailiff Sustains Bad Fractures of Leg.

John W. Eckles, bailiff in the commissioners' court, had his right leg fractured in two places today in a collision at Berry and Clinton streets with an automobile driven by J. R. Hunt, local agent for the Remington typewriter.

Mr. Eckles was taken to Hope hospital and later taken to his home at 719 East Wayne street. Both fractures are below the knee and Mr. Eckles will not be out for some time. Hunt was turning into Berry street from Clinton when the collision occurred and Eckles was riding his wheel west on Berry. The pavement was wet and neither could check in time to prevent the accident.

INMENSE CROWD AT FALL FESTIVAL IN AUBUHN

Senator Beveridge is Chief Speaker at DeKalb County Exhibit.

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 7.—With clearing weather after a distressing start yesterday, the fall festival and exhibit in this city today broke all records in the matter of attendance, and the crowd is larger by many hundreds than has ever attended a similar event in this city.

Senator Beveridge was the principal speaker of the day, addressing a large audience early this afternoon. The senator, who spoke at the Lagrange corn school yesterday, came down to Garrett last night, and at noon today delivered an address to the Baltimore & Ohio shopmen. He was joined at Garrett by Judge O. N. Heaton and District Chairman J. M. Henry, of Fort Wayne, who accompanied him to this city. Senator Beveridge left at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Huntington, where he is scheduled to speak this evening.

LAGRANGE CORN SHOW.

Distinguished Speakers Address the Crowd in Attendance.

Lagrange, Ind., Oct. 7.—The attendance was large today at the annual corn school and exhibition of the farm products of Lagrange county. It was the big day of the exhibtion, the rain having interfered with it during the last two days. Today occurred the parade of the school children. The addresses of the afternoon were by ex-Governor Rich, of Michigan; Hons. Charles E. Townsend, James E. Watson, John W. Kern, Cyrus Cline and others. Senator Beveridge and Judge O. N. Heaton, of Fort Wayne, were the speakers last night.

WANTS SOME LABORERS.

Thomas H. Collins, of the Asphalt Block Pavement company, of Toledo, who has the contract for paving Wayne street from Calhoun to Harrison, was in the city today making preparations to take up the work next week and in search of laborers. He wants to send about 40 men to Delphos, where he has a contract and not enough laborers to do the work. He wants them so badly that he will pay their fare there and back, furnish them a house to live in and pay them good wages. He has had the same difficulty securing labor that contractors have experienced here.

Still growing——the business of the Foster Furniture and Carpet company for September, 1910, exceeded by ten per cent. any other September in the history of the store. Fort Wayne is growing and the "Big Store" grows with it.

Mrs. Frank Howey, of Baltimore, who was called here two weeks ago by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. George J. Studer, left for her home last evening. Mrs. Studer has passed the critical stage of her illness and her rapid recovery is expected.

LABOR AND LIQUOR.

We fail to see who besides the liquor man can get any benefit from a business which robs the laborer's family, discounts his service to his employer and puts a tax on the community to protect itself from the dangers and evils which lurk in the shadow of the saloon.

It is not surprising, therefore, that today both employers and employes are taking a plain, cold, business view of the relations between labor and liquor, and both are declaring intoxicating drinks to be their common enemy.—The Lutheran.

DUE HERE TODAY IN A RUN TO TEST ENDURANCE

Seventy Motorcyclists to Reach Fort Wayne This Evening.

Seventy motorcyclists, driving a wide variety of machines in a two-days' endurance run from Chicago to Indianapolis, are due in Fort Wayne this afternoon and evening, and will spend the night in the city. The run is under the auspices of the western district of the American Federation of Motorcyclists.

The machines with their riders were started away from Chicago at 7:30 o'clock this morning, starting in pairs one minute apart. The party contains one lady rider, and the day's route led by the way of Hammond, Valparaiso, Laporte, South Bend, Elkhart, Goshen, Ligonier and Churubusco to this city, a total distance of 189.2 miles. The stop for lunch was made at South Bend.

The first pair of riders is due in Fort Wayne at 4:45 o'clock and the last riders at 5:20 o'clock this afternoon. They will register at the Ohnhaus garage, delivering their machines there and as the contest is an endurance test riders will not be permitted to make repairs or otherwise touch their machines while here, except to replenish supplies of oil and gasoline. Tomorrow's run from Fort Wayne to Indianapolis is 175.5 miles, passing through Huntington, Wabash, Peru, Logansport, Kokomo, Tipton and Noblesville.

The more than one hundred motorcyclists in Fort Wayne are manifesting much interest in the run.

Rev. Dr. F. M. Fox will conduct a preparatory service to the monthly communion to be held at the Third Presbyterian church on Sunday, in the vestry rooms of the church at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Thousands of mothers are looking younger.—Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

MISS E. A. ROSS,

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Jimmy Donnelly First to Use the Fallaway Slide

John McGraw is generally credited with being the originator of the "fallaway" slide, but he is not. He is honest enough to give credit where credit is due and says he got the idea of the famous base-running dodge, speak, twist, swirl, wriggle or whatever it may be called, from Jimmy Donnelly, an old-time third baseman of more or less prominence, who played in several big league teams in his day, but who figured in the later days of his baseball career in the minors.

Donnelly was a good fielder, a crackerjack base runner and a fair batter. In 1896, when the Baltimore Orioles, the noted three-time champions, where at their best, McGraw was suddenly attacked with typhoid fever and oblized to take to his bed, where he laid for a long time.

McGraw, at the time, was the backbone of the hustling Orioles. He was captain and third baseman, and some say that he was the brains of that sensational team. But those who remember "Ned" Hanlon as a manager and player will feel like putting a copper on that bit of India-rubber imagination.

But anyhow, McGraw's absence from the team meant a whole lot and presaged danger. There was not as many substitutes carried in those days as now by the various clubs, and Hanlon was at a loss as to who to put on the bag in McGraw's place. There was no other player on the team who could be shifted without breaking up a winning combination, so Hanlon had to do some hustling on the outside. He finally landed Jimmy Donnelly, and he proved the right man in the right place. Jimmy had been playing for a dozen years, but he hadn't begun to go back. He was just the proper kind of a player to fill in with a fast lot of players such as the Orioles were. Jimmy was heady, too, and that was another point in his favor, for the Orioles at the time were the quickest thinking bunch of players on the diamond. Hanlon had no use for any others, but he did keep Walter (Steve) Brodie somehow or other, possibly as a foil to show up all the stronger his brainy players.

Donnelly filled McGraw's shoes well, not fully, perhaps, but enough to enable the Orioles to stay up in the race and be the real factor at the end of it.

Donnelly was kept after McGraw was able to resume his position, and it was then that the Giants' present manager saw Donnelly make the present "fallaway" slide for the first time. With his usual keen and quick perception McGraw saw that about the only part of a base runner's makeup that could be touched by the guardian of the base was one of the pilferer's shoe plates, and he immediately adopted the slide himself and had Hanlon have his players to learn it. It figured largely in enabling the Orioles to win as frequently as they did.

Since being manager of the Giants McGraw has insisted that his players learn the slide. Even the pitchers are not excepted, and it is funny to see the lumbering, awkward way some of the twirlers go at the slide in practice. An hour every day, when the Giants were down in Marlin, Tex., for spring training was given to practicing the fallaway slide. Every player cannot get the hang of it. Some find it impossible to make it. Doyle, Devore, Shafer and Bridwell of the Giants, have it down fine. Delvin, Snodgrass and Murray have it fairly well. It has won many a game for the Giants.

Jimmy Donnelly wasn't the first to use the "fallaway," although he was the first that McGraw saw do it. The old Chicago White Stockings of the middle eighties had several players who could sneak and wriggle into a base any old way, including the fallaway slide, although it was not known by that name then. Mike Kelly, Tommy Burns, Ed Williamson and George Gore were among the White Stockings who had the slide down pat. Bill Dahlen got the idea from those old Chicago players, Bill joining the White Stockings in 1891. No one had it down any finer than Dahlen either. I think it was called the "split" slide in those days.

Murray of the Giants, has a peculiar slide. He goes in feet first and shoots up into a standing posture without loss of speed. That is done by falling on the calf of one leg and lifting at the same time. Roger Connor had Murray's slide down fine. But it is not as effective or safe as the fallaway.

Gained Few Points on Cobb

LAJOIE.

Tidbits of Sporting News

Jimmy Block, one of the backstops of the Chicago Americans, whose real name is John Blockovitz and whose home is in Milwaukee, where he received his first lessons in baseball on the corner lots, is to be married. The bride to be is Miss Marie Czaplewski. The license was issued yesterday.

Sam Crawford of the Tigers was quoted some time ago as saying that Ty Cobb's ambition to win the automobile in the batting contest in the big leagues had cost Detroit the pennant. At the same time the statement was made that Ownie Bush, the great shortstop, and Cobb were not on speaking terms. How true this assertion was is shown by the fact that Bush refused to bat before or after Cobb, and consequently has been hitting in sixth place instead of in the sacrifice position.

Joe Raidy has been entered in the contest for manager at Terre Haute. The fans are picking one down there without any regard for present contracts. Eddie Coffey has also been selected and by the time the fans get all split up into factions "Louis" will have some more troubles.

"Goat" Anderson may be a manager next year, says a Rochester paper. Dayton owns "Goat" but the Rochester officials hope to do something for the gamy old left fielder that will please him.

George Stallings is one man who has had a prominent part in the year's baseball affairs that will not be unhappy this winter. He has gone to his home in Georgia, where he has a 5,000 acre plantation, most of which is in cotton, so that he will not need to worry over his winter spending money.

Tris Speaker had a chance to see Cobb make one of his famous catches in the outfield the other day, and he is now satisfied that Cobb is twice as valuable as he is and can understand why the Detroit club did not jump at the chance to trade for him when Cobb was to figure in the deal.

Two world's records are already broken in the American league this year. Walter Johnson is engaged in pushing the strike-out record out of the reach of future generations and Eddie Collins is busy adding stolen bases to the record that Ty Cobb made.

Ira Thomas, Athletics' catcher, has it all doped out how he will win the world's series from the Cubs. Ira had better keep mum for fear Connie Mack will not give him a chance to work in the series.

The Athletics will play right up to the end of the week with the All-Stars in practice games. The final game will be on Saturday and the world's series will start on Monday.

Those New York Highlanders are beginning to talk a little for publication now. Stallings was about the limit in cruelty, according to some of them, for he used to call them a lot of times when they made bad plays. You would hardly believe such a thing, would you?

WHEELER HAS MADE NO DEAL WITH ANNIS

Will Hold Meeting Next Week at Which They Will Decide.

Right on top of the announcement that Eddie Wheeler has decided to remain at South Bend for another season comes one that he and Bert Annis have made no plans for next year and that neither knows what he will do next year.

This statement is given out by Annis, who says in addition that the two will meet next week and reach a final decision. Last summer Annis said he would sell his interests at South Bend and devote all of his time and attention to the Grand Rapids franchise which he thinks he can convert into a good investment by putting in a club that will make a showing in the pennant race.

After this was given out South Bend developed into a profitable town by the sale of a couple of players and the increased patronage that followed a big fight with Fort Wayne and a pennant winning combination. This may have served to bring about a change of heart and, after all, Annis may decide to hold his franchise in Bronchotown.

There is no doubt that the signing of Jimmy Burke at Indianapolis will have great influence with Wheeler. He wants to come to Fort Wayne in common with the other managers who know the berth is the best in the Central league and if he is at liberty to negotiate with Claude Varnell he will likely make an active fight for the place.

That nothing has passed between him and the local owner is made certain by a telegram in which Mr. Varnell says he has done nothing toward signing a manager for next year.

Dr. F. R. Carson says he will call a meeting in a short time at which the business of the year will be checked up and something will grow out of the gathering if nothing is done in the meantime. All of the owners who have no managers for next year will want to make a selection as early as possible and something interesting will follow the session.

Can the Cubs Hit Curve?

One often hears an enthusiastic Chicago Cub partisan say: "Why, Chance's boys will knock Jack Coombs' best offerings all over the lot. Jack hasn't got a chance against the Cubs."

But hasn't he? Just stop and consider for a moment. Who is there among the Cubs who ranks with Lajoie, Cobb, Speaker, Chase, Crawford and other knights of the Big Stick in the American league? Artie Hofman comes to mind. Well, granted that Artie has been hitting the ball well this year, he can't be expected to do it all. One star does not make a ball team. That has been proven in the case of Lajoie in Cleveland, Speaker in Boston, Chase in New York, Cobb in Detroit and a number of other instances.

Jack Coombs owns one of the most deceptive drop curves ever hurled up to the plate by a pitcher. American league umpires are a unit in saying that they never saw anything that could even remotely approach Coombs' chief stock in trade. Lajoie, Cobb, Knight, Speaker and the other star batters of the American league have not been able to cope successfully with this ball. Coombs has used it only in tight places, but the big stickers of the league have found the drop too much for them.

The question naturally arises: "If the star batters of the American league have been unable to connect with this deceptive curve with effect in a number of trials during a championship season of 154 games, how can the ubs, who are much weaker at bat, hope to hit the curve with winning results in a series of only seven games?"

Jack's curve is a thing of beauty. It comes straight for the batter, until within a few feet of the plate, and then shoots downward like a streak of lightning. It is a difficult matter for the keenest eye to follow the ball. It breaks sosuddenly that one imagines he hears the snap. Players say it is the most wonderful curve they have ever looked at, and they believe that with it Coombs will work the undoing of the National league champions in much the same manner as he won 29 of 37 games in the American league.

Babe Adams was tumbled into the discard by the Cubs in the game at Chicago yesterday and the new champs had no trouble winning the game as Lou Richie was in good form and allowed only half a dozen safe drives.

Dolly Starke injected a two-base hit and a single into the game between Brooklyn and New York and Drucke tied the strike-out record of the season which is thirteen.

SULLIVAN WILL COACH.

Connie Mack Has Sent for Him to Talk About the Cubs.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7.—Billy Sullivan, the White Sox catcher, was sent for yesterday by Manager Mack of the Philadelphia champions to coach them in the coming series between the Athletics and a picked American league team.

Sullivan probably will catch some of the games for the picked nine, helping out Street and Ainsmith of the Senators. But the chief reason for sending for Billy is that he was an important factor in winning the world's pennant of 1906 from the Cubs, and presumably can give, not only the Athletics' catchers and pitchers, but the other players as well, valuable points regarding how it was done.

Sullivan, it will be remembered, caught all six games in the 1906 series with the Cubs, and eleven of the Cubs who played in that series will be eligible to the coming contest. Sullivan has caught against all the regulars who will be in the Cub lineup for the six series except Zimmerman, who has replaced the injured keystone sacker, Evers.

Manager Mack probably figures that Sullivan ought to know more about the strength and weakness of the Cubs than a whole flocks of scouts could tell him after watching Chance's men for a couple of weeks. All of which proves that the Athletic manager does not look upon the Cubs as an easy proposition for his champions, and does not intend to overlook anything clean that will help.

MORMONS DECRY POLYGAMY.

Former Creed of Church Is Condemned by Leaders at Conference.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 7.—When the semi-annual conference of the Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints (Mormon), opened here yesterday President Joseph F. Smith and his counsellors, H. A. Lund and John Henry Smith, addressed the gathering on the subject of plural marriages among church members since the issuance of the manifesto of 1890, declaring these marriages contrary to the rules of the church. The speakers declared that polygamy must cease. These open declarations closely follow the excommunication within a week of two members of the church heretofore in high standing. One was a bishop who had married polygamously and the other was a patriarch who had officiated at a polygamous wedding.

FRENCHMAN GAINS A FEW POINTS ON GEORGIAN

Lajoie Gets Three Hits Out of Four Times Up—American League.

Napoleon Lajoie moved a point nearer that big automobile yesterday when he picked off three hits out of four times up and he gained on Cobb who got a couple of hits and a pass in his first three trips to the plate, but went down easily in the next two.

The Naps made a great rally in the fifth inning and came near hooking up the score, but fell one run short. Mitchell and Koestner, the opposing pitchers each got a double in the game.

Dixie Walker was pulled out of the second game between Washington and Boston and Walter Johnson was sent to his relief. The Senators and the Red Sox split a double bill and Johnson added a couple to his strike-out record for the season. In the first game Gray was knocked out and Otey went into stop the speeders.

After Detroit had chased "Doc" White out of the box Lange took up the running and stopped the Tigers. In the meantime Peasley and Willetts were getting drubbed hard.

Although Dygert allowed New York but six hits against seven landed off Ford, a single, double and a triple were bunched in one inning and beat the champs. The scores:

WILL GIVE BOXING SHOW.

Big Card Has Been Arranged for Next Wednesday.

Hugh McGann, who stood off Stanley Ketchel for six rounds at Pittsburg last year and gave the middleweight champ one of the best arguments he ever had, and William Schiller, the German Giant, are the two men who will put on the big event of the boxing card to be staged at the Princess rink next Wednesday afternoon.

McGann has been in the city for some time looking for a mill and Schiller is making his headquarters at Louisville. Milt Kinney will go against Andy Coakley and local fans will get to see a man in Coakley who has made a good reputation outside of his home town of Fort Wayne. The affair is under the management of the same promoters who put on the last exhibition.

SHOE MEN WIN TWO IN THREE FROM BERGHOFFS

Brewers Get Good Start But Fall Down and Lose in Last Two.

The Berghoffs got away in good style in the first Brunswick league last night and tabbed 913 for a starter, but fell down and the Walkovers came along and grabbed off the second and third. The parade evidently disturbed the bowlers as the men rolled way below their average and Captain Henry Schneiker, of the losers was the only man to top a double century and he barely got over the line.

The Walkovers, made up from second league graduates, bowled consistently all the way through. None of them tabbed a high score, but the general average was good. Bartels was high man. The scores:

WALSH'S PARDON DOUBTFUL.

Reference of Case to Parole Board Places Fate Against Banker.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The petition of Indiana and Illinois citizens, praying for the pardon of John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker, serving a term at Leavenworth, Kan., is before the parole board, created by an act passed at the last session of congress. Doubt is expressed that President Taft will pardon Walsh. In fact, it is believed that the reference of the case to the parole board means that the president has no intention of pardoning Walsh. The parole board will meet at Leavenworth November 1. Under the law the board cannot act in this case for some time. The law provides that paroles may be granted only in cases of prisoners who have served one-third of the total of their terms.

When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil light has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unflickering light of the low-priced Rayo.

MOST TRAGIC STORY IN AMERICAN NAVAL HISTORY.

When the Son of a Cabinet Officer Tried to Hoist the Black Flag Over a Man-of-War and Paid at the Yard Arm.

The humdrum world was startled a few days ago by the intelligence that part of the crew of a Pacific steamer had mutinied on he high seas not many hours out of San Francisco and had attempted to seize the vessel. The mutineers were quickly put down, and the leader jumped overboard to avoid capture. It wasn't much of a mutiny, but it served to recall to the minds of this work-a-day generation one of the dangers and hazards of the deep that once was as imminent as storm and wreck to men who went down to the sea in ships.

Mutiny and piracy are words almost unknown noow, and more than a century has passed since they were potent to strike terror to the hearts of voyagers, merchants and ship owners. One great tragedy of the sea, however, is recent enough to be recalled by the attempt on the Pacific steamer. Long after the last pirate disappeared from the seven seas, and when improved discipline aboard ship and the more humane treatment of crews had made mutinies a thing of the past, it remained for the American navy to record a sad and terrible punishment it met. As late as the administration of President Tyler, and on a well beaten track of commerce on the Atlantic ocean, a midshipman on a United States man-of-war, a son of President Tyler's secretary of the treasury, made a mad attempt to seize the ship, haul down the Stars and Stripes and hoist the skull and crossbones. He and two of his fellow conspirators paid for their crime with their lives, being hanged from the yardarm, while the midshipmen whom he had tried to corrupt gazed horror-stricken from the deck.

The leader of the mutiny was a mere boy, not nineteen years old, and the rigorous punishment dealt him and his companions by the captain of the brig raised a storm of indignation in the country, which the halls of congress, the navy department and the courts of the land long echoed. At the naval court of inquiry which followed, James Fenimore Cooper was a witness against the captain, and tithough the court held he was justified in putting the mutineers to death, the controversy long raged. Fourteen years after the event Senator Thomas Hart Benton reviewed the case in his "Thirty Years' View," and scathingly arraigned the captain and his judges for the commission and the condoning of what he denounced as cowardly murders, done under an untenable plea of necessity.

Whispers of the Mutiny.

On the morning of November 26, 1842, the United States man-of-war Somers, Capt. Alexander Slidell Mackenzie commanding, was approaching the West Indies, returning from the coast of Africa. The brig had sailed from New York some months before on a practice cruise, and had on board ninety-six apprentices and a crew of twenty-four officers and men. The vessel, according to Captain Mackenzie's testimony before the court of inquiry, was in a good state of discipline, no disaffection had been noticed in any quarter and none of the officers was prepared for the appalling events which the day ushered in. That morning Lieutenant Gansevoort, second in commaand, informed Captain Mackenzie that one Wales, a purser's steward, had reported to him that he had been approached by Midshipman Spencer with a guarded intimation of some dark design on the ship and its officers. Spencer had called him aside the night before, Wales said, and asked him if he feared death, if he feared a dead man anad if he was afraid to kill a man. Wales drew Spencer out by showing a willingness to enter into the plan hinted, and Spencer then disclosed a scheme for seizing the ship, killing the officers and sailing away on a piratical cruise. Spencer showed Wales a list of his fellow conspirators, four of them marked certain, ten doubtful an deighteen whose aid in the project was to be compelled by threats of death. The paper containing this list Spencer carried concealed in his neck cloth, Wales said.

A surreptitious watch was immediately put upon Spencer, and during the day he was seen examining a shart of the West Indies and privately making notes on a piece of paper. He was found frequently in consultation with one Cromwell, a boatswain's mate, and Small, a seaman, and it was learned he had distributed money and tobacco among the crew, and had bribed the wardroom steward to steal brandy from the officers' mess. At one time he drew a picture of a brig with a black flag and asked some of the midshipmen what they thought of it.

With this evidence Captain Mackenzie determined to act. He ordered all the officers aft on the quarter deck and the crew to the mainmast. Then he approached Spencer and said to him:

"I learn, Mr. Spencer, that you aspire to the command of the Somers."

Spencer, with an unmoved countenance, shook his head and replied smilingly, "Oh, no, sir."

"Did you not tell Mr. Wales, sir," pursued the captain, "that you had a project to kill the commander, the officers and a considerable portion of the crew of this vessel and to convert her into a pirate?"

"I may have told him so, sir, but it was a joke," replied Spencer.

"This, sir, is joking on a forbidden subject," said the captain, sernly. "This joke may cost you yor life."

"Kill Him if He Speaks."

Spencer was placed in double irons and gagged. That is, a tarpaulin bag was drawn over him and fastened around his neck, rendering the slightest movement impossible. In addition an armed guard was placed over him as he lay on the deck, with orders to kill him if he spoke to any person or made any kind of a signal. A search of his person failed to disclose the list of his fellow conspirators, but in his quarters rolled up and concealed in a razor case the paper was found containing the names written in Greek—thirty in all. Cromwell, Small and twelve others whose names appeared in the list weer then seized, double ironed and placed in bags, and Captain Mackenzie called a council of his officers to determine upon the prisoners' fate.

Before this council the midshipmen and members of the crew were called singly and examined. The testimony brought out much that alarmed the officers and raised a serious doubt as to whether the ship was yet safe. The existence of a ploot to free the prisoners and carry out the original design was believed by many. Cromwell and Small, it was shown, understood navigation and their help would be needed by the mutineers if the ship weer taken. For this reason the council was convinced that it would be dangerous to attempt to take the prisoners into port, and was of the opinion, and so advised Captain Mackenzie, that Cromwell and Small, as the navigators, and Spencer as the instigator and leader of the mutiny, ought to be put to death.

Preparations for a Hanging.

As soon as the decision of the council was made known to the captain and he had concurred in it, he ordered Lieutenant Gansevoort to muster the petty officers on the quarter deck and issued to each a cutlass, pistol and cartridge box. He then addressed them in thees words: "My lads, you are to look to me—to obey my orders, and to see that my orders are obeyed! Go forward!" Immediately preparations were then made for nanging the three principals, and all hands were mustered to witness the punishment. To make the dreadful lesson more impressive it was ordered that each should die on the spot where his service had been aboard ship and that the companions of his watch should be stationed at his halter. Thus the afterguard of both watches were stationed on the quarter deck where Spencer was to suffer, the forecastle men and foretop men at the rope intended for Cromwell, and the maintop men ata that of Small. The officers who had been armed were ordered to cut down any man who should let go the rops or fail to haul when the captain gave the word to hoist the culprits into the air.

Captain Mackenzie, in full uniform anad with his sword at his side, himself apprized the mutineers of their fate. Spencer was overpowered. He fell on his knees and said he was not fit to die.

"I informed Mr. Spencer," Captain Mackenzie said in his report to the secretary of the navy, "that when he had been about to take my life, and to dishonor me as an officer when in the execution of my rightful dutyt, it had been his intention to remove me suddenly from the world, in the darkness of the night, without a moment to utter one word of affection to my wife and children—one prayer for thir welfare. His life was now forfeited to his country; and the necessities of the case, growing out of the corruption of the crew, compelled me to take it. I repeated to him his catechism and begged him at least to let the officer set to the men he had corrupted and seduced the example of dying with decorum!"

Spencer Confessed.

At the last moment Spencer asked for pen and paper, but being unable to write with his hands manacled, Captain Mackenzie wrote for him at his dictation a full confesson of his design on the ship.

"There are few crimes," he said, "which I have not committed."

Cromwell and Smad protested their innocence to the last, and no admissions could be obtained from Spencer incriminating them. Captain Mackenzie carried to Spencer derogatory remarks which the men made about him when they found themselves in trouble on his account, in the hope of extorting something further from him. One of them had said to Lieutenant Gansevoort: "In my opinion you have the fool on the larboard arms chest and the villain on the starboard," meaning that Spencer was the fool and Cromwell the villain. Another had given it as his opinion that Cromwell was using Spencer for a tool and that if they had captured the vessel Cromwell would have made away with Spencer. The repetition of these remarks to Spencer while he awaited death, and the other hectoring he was subjected to in the hope of getting further confessions, was strongly condemned by Fenimore Cooper and others of Mackenzie's critics. They roused the public sympathy for the condemned man, but not in the way that had been hoped. "His countenance assumed a demonical expression," Mackenzie said in his report, but he said nothing. A few moments later, on the firing of a signal gun by the captain, the crew hauled away at the ropes and the bodies of the mutineers were jerked aloft to the yardarm, where they hung until they were dead. Captain Mackenzie's report then says:

"Cheer Ship."

"The crew were now piped down from witnessing the punishment, and all hands called to cheer ship. I gave the order, 'Stand by to give three hearty cheers for the flag of our country!' Never were three heartier cheers given. In that electric moment I do not doubt that the patriotism of even the worst of the conspirators for an instant broke forth."

When the news of the tragedy on the Somers reached the United States it created a tremendous sensation. The high position of Midshipman Spencer's father, as well as of the witnesses who testified before the court of inquiry and the critics who published their views on Captain Mackenzie's action, gave the controversy a political aspect that made it the more difficult to allay. Captain Mackenzie was acquitted by the court, and after a long delay the charges against the twelve mutineers whom he brought into port in irons were dropped. An effort was made by the relatives of the executed men to prosecute Captain Mackenzie in the civil courts, but it was futile. The story constitutes the saddest as well as the most tragic chapter in the history of the American n-----.

EUROPEAN BIRD MEN ARRIVE.

CAPTAIN PAUL SCHAECK AND HERR PAUL ARMBRUSTER.

New York, Oct. 6.—Capt. Theodore Schaeck, president of the Swiss Aero club, and his assistant, Herr Paul Armbruster, are the latest bird men to arrive. In their balloon, the Helvetia, they will compete at St. Louis, Mo., on October 17, in the balloon contest for the International cup.

It was in the Helvetia that Captain Schaeck won the race for the International cup held at Berlin in 1908. At that time he established the balloon record for duration, remaining in the air for seventy-three hours. In that race the Helvetia traveled 1,200 kilometres (745 miles), reached a height of 5,300 metres 3 1-3 miles), and sailed over the North sea in forty-three hours.

Captain Schaeck said that added experience in balloon handling obtained during the last two years had made him confident that he would win the cup again this month, and that the Helvetia would establish new records.

THE TWO WAYS.

I said: "Let me walk in the fields."
God said: "No, walk in the town."
I said: "There are no flowers here."
He said: "No flowers, but a crown."

I said: "But the skies are black;
There is nothing but noise and din."
And he wept as he sent me back,
"There is more," he said, "there is sin."

I said: "But the clouds are thick,
And fogs are veiling the sun."
He answered: "Yet souls are sick,
And souls in the dark, undone."

I said: "I shall miss the light,
And friends will miss me, they say."
He answered: "Choose tonight
Whether I am to miss you or they."

I pleaded for time to be given;
He said: "Is it hard to decide?
It will not be hard in heaven
To have followed the steps of your Guide."

Then into His hand went mine,
And into my heart came He;
And I walk in a light divine
The path I had feared to see.

PATRIOTISM STILL LIVES.

Landlord Shoots a Boarder For Ordering Lobster—Mayor Wings an Alderman — Answers to Calumniators. Threatening Correspondents Urged to—Everything Sizzles.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

THE reports in the eastern papers that the editor of the Kicker was dead have no foundation. We are alive every day in the week, but, of course, are taking our chances with other folks.

Our genial host of the Royal hotel has had to shoot another guest for finding fault with the bill of fare, but he did it as gently as he could and only wounded him in the arm. The guest asked for broiled lobster and could not be induced to believe that summer bear steak was a better thing.

As mayor of Giveadam Gulch and president of the common council we had a little trouble with Alderman Finnegan at the last meeting of the council. [illegible] greatly exaggerated. He insisted on speaking when there was no question before the house, and we had to fire a bullet close to his ear to sit him down. It was a mere trifle—something liable to happen at any meeting.

SQUELCHES ALDERMAN FINNEGAN.

A city marshal is wanted at Giveadam Gulch to replace the one killed last week, salary $12 per week, and he will be expected to shoot straight and shoot quick; one without a family to mourn his demise preferred.

One effect of advancing civilization is to be witnessed in this gulch every day. The number of men who now drink alone instead of calling up the crowd is 50 per cent more than a year ago. It makes one's heart ache to see the good old times passing away.

Over at Lone Jack they set out to hang a man last Sunday night, but, of course, they bungled the affair and he got away. No wonder they can hardly give real estate away in that town and that enterprising citizens are leaving it.

We understand that a horse was stolen from Big Four ranch last Saturday evening by a one eyed man. We also understand that the one eyed man was buried after getting five miles away. He had his sorrows, the same as the rest of us, but is now over with them.

In the crowd gathered at the dog fight in front of the postoffice the other day we counted forty guns strapped to the waists of as many individuals. Some of the newspapers are saying that patriotism is dying out of the country. We don't think so.

This is our regular week for lying about the circulation of the Kicker. Its circulation has now reached the 2,000,000,000 mark, and to print it we have to set up 500 presses in the open air. How we pity those eastern newspaper liars!

The Kicker's circulation in Japan is now 1,000,000 copies per week, and the figures in Siam have grown to be something startling. We started out to make a newspaper for the whole world, and we are doing it. We have just sent out an agent to push the circulation in Egypt and shall look for the best results.

George Tompkins, who was called a liar in this column last week, dropped in yesterday to have a shot at us, but when he got ready his gun failed to go off. In our fatherly way in such cases we led him to the door and bade him come some other day. There is something lonely in the thought that a man is a liar and a failure at the same time.

Mr. John Swan, who lately returned from a trip to South Africa, called at the Kicker office the other day to inform us that in every single tribe of natives he met he found that our paper led all others by many thousands. We do not wish to boast, but we feel compelled to say that any wild African who wants the best thing in America will send his subscription to Giveadam Gulch. We do not subscribe to any heathen fund, but we do make a weekly paper that all heathens must appreciate.

Two new doctors hung out their signs in Giveadam Gulch last week. We shall have an eye on them, and the first time they set a broken leg with the heel at the front they will have to seek another clime. Our whisky may be diluted out this way, but we insist that our doctors shall be 100 per cent proof.

The Kicker is asked what its attitude will be toward Mr. Taft when his term expires. We are the postmaster at Giveadam Gulch. Our attitude will be anything to hold our job. We have never thrown away a good thing yet and don't intend to. Mr. Taft will take care of himself, and we will take care of the postoffice.

A Montana paper charges us with being a madly ambitious man and thinks we ought to be curbed. Madly nothing! Why, man, we could hire a hundred newspapers to mention us as a candidate for the next presidency, but we are not making a move. We intend to be governor some day, but there is nothing madly about that. That is only the reward of virtue. We wish the press of Arizona would come to understand us as we are.

It takes only one barrel of lard per week to grease the machinery of the greatest daily paper in America, while it takes fifty-five to grease the machinery of the Kicker. The business man who can't see where his advertising should be placed is a blind man.

We have over 40,000 acres of desert land lying idle or producing nothing but rattlesnakes and cactus, and any one desiring to experiment with a cocoanut farm or a poultry ranch will be given very favorable terms. Sites given free for orphan asylums.

A Massachusetts paper charges us with being an atheist. The charge is without foundation. We were brought up in Sunday school ways, but out west here you must depend on a gun first and Providence later on. Those New England people should come out here and get a clear understanding of the case.

We had forgotten to tell about our editorial staff and hasten to make good at once. It comprises 1,200 editors and reporters, and not one of them receives less than $100 per week. They consume 1,000 bottles of champagne per day, which is the greatest newspaper record in the known world. By sending in your advertisements a year ahead you are sure of an insertion. We take the advertisements of all fakes and leave the fools to look out for themselves.

One Mr. Johnson of Utah has gone to the trouble and expense of buying a postal card and writing us to the effect that he will soon arrive in this town for the purpose of plunking us. Mr. Johnson, come along; come along and plunk us and let us plunk at you. Bring your funeral expenses in your hind pocket. Have your will drawn. Overhaul your conscience and make such reparation as you can. When you arrive in town, Mr. Johnson, don't lose time in calling. Delays are dangerous. Come in with a gun in either hand and begin blazing away and leave the introduction till afterward. You will find us at home and in our usual good natured mood. If we plunk you we pay for your headstone. If you plunk us the sheriff will give you ten miles the start.

TRAVELING MAN ENDS LIFE.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—G. F. Rankin, a traveling salesman, was found dead in his room at the Victoria hotel today under circumstances which the police declare indicate suicide by morphine poisoning. He registered a week ago from Terre Haute, Ind., but left a note saying, "Notify C. King, Columbia, S. C." Death apparently occurred four days ago, but in the confusion attending a change of management of the hotel the fact was not discovered until today.

Some of the depositors in our Savings Department seem to think that when the New German-American Trust Co. is started, we intend to transfer our Savings Department to the Trust Co.

WE HAVE NO SUCH INTENTION

Our Savings Department was established to meet the demand for a place where people could deposit small amounts and have their savings protected by all the safeguards of the National Banking system. It has been a great success, and we intend to continue it just the same after the Trust Co. is started as before.

Its a good thing for you and for us and we propose to hold on to it.

Boy Testifies That He Bought Drinks at the Board of Trade.

Chief Ben Elliott, of the police department, was not present in the city court today when William A. Fenton, eighteen, testified that he bought drinks at the board of trade saloon and none of the other officers gave the matter any attention.

The chief heard of the case and said he would look into it and if he can get the proper testimony he will file an affidavit against the proprietor. Fenton was fined $5 and costs and the fine was suspended.

The Other Cases.

Charles Harrington, pointed out to the police as a pickpocket, was picked up for loitering and his case was continued until tomorrow morning under a bond of $200.

Louis Johnson, a negro hotel porter, was fined $10 and costs for assaulting another negro employe. The case against Harold Barnes, the discharged soldier, was continued until tomorrow morning. John Galvin was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness and John High was let go.

GROWTH OF PLAYGROUNDS.

Sixteen Hundred Playing Spaces Have Developed From Old Boston Saand Pile Idea.

(Everette B. Mero in Christian Science Monitor.)

Twenty years ago not more than two playgrounds existed in America that could meet the requirements of today's standard. Ten years ago there were approximately sixty in thirty cities. Now there are surely 1,600 in 300 cities and towns in all sections of the country.

The growth in number seems to be spontaneous wherever the idea is comprehended. In most cases they start through private initiative and are later taken over by some municipal department, or, better yet, by a new department whose sole duty is to look after the recreation needs of a community. Nearly half the cities having playgrounds have them wholly or partly under such public control and support. The present tendency is for cities to make playground development a civic duty, these places becoming recreation centers for the benefit of all inhabitants regardless of age limits or social conditions.

Playgrounds started in the United States from a Boston sand pile in 1887. An observant woman saw children happily busy with sand piles placed by the authorities in the parks of German cities. She wondered why American children were not given the same opportunities for pleasure and did not remain satisfied with passively wondering. The sanad pile scheme proved itself adapted to American needs, aand within two years had developed into an open air gymnasium on the Charlesbank in Boston. This, the first municipal playground in this country, still remains capable of continued service to children and grown-ups.

CADET EXPLAINS "SILENCE."

"Honor System Is Being Endangered," Says a West Pointer.

(Philadelphia Times.)

The cadets' view of the "silence scandal" at the West Point Military academy is made plain by a Philadelphian who returned from a visit to the government school a few days ago, and who talked with one of the cadets about the affair while there.

The cadet made it plain why Captain Longan was disliked by the corps, and expressed the belief that this feeling has been strengthened by Captain Longan's appeal to the authorities. The cadet who is quoted said that if the threatened punishment is meted out to the cadets it will mean ruin of the "honor" system and traditions.

"The cadet with whom I spoke," said the Philadelphia, whose name is withheld for obvious reasons, "discussed the situation in practically these words:

"'I guess the Philadelphia papers are full of it, and I'll bet my hat not one of them has it right yet. I guess it might be construed as insubordination or mutinous conduct, but we were forced to it.

"'Longan has since he reported late in August called about a dozen men liars in official relations. That necessarily has worked the corps up. Then he paraded the post and told the people that the corps had deteriorated since his days. 'But I'll change it. They need discipline, and I'll see that they get it.'

"'The calling men liars is what incensed the corps most. We are on honor in our official business and honor is the pride of the Point. Do you wonder that we resent being called liars?'"

CHASE AND LINCOLN.

Chase had been a rival of Lincoln in 1860. He had gone into the cabinet with a feeling very like that of Mr. Seward, that Lincoln was an inexperienced man, incapable of handling the situation, and that he or Mr. Seward would be the premier. Mr. Seward soon found that Lincoln was the master, and he was great enough to acknowledge the supremacy. But Mr. Chase was never able to recognize Lincoln's greatness. He continued to regard him as an inferior mind, and seemed to believe, honestly enough, that the people would prefer himself as president if they could only have an opportunity to vote for him.—Tarbell's Life of Lincoln.

HARD COAL BASE BURNERS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN MADE WRONG

A STREET DEMONSTRATION OF THE

Most Wonderful Stove Made

FOR BURNING HARD COAL, BY MR. J. B. HOWARD, THE INVENTOR, WHO WILL PROVE THE ABOVE STATEMENT TO YOU.

Demonstrations Will Take Place Saturday Afternoon and Evening, October 8th, in Front of The Fort Wayne Outfitters on the Street.

Mr. Howard says: I will demonstrate the Searchlight Utility in front of the Fort Wayne Outfitters, burning all sizes of hard coal—chestnut, stove size and egg, and reducing it to gas. I guarantee this wonderful stove to give a steady heat day and night. If the J. B. Howard Combustion Damper (patented) is set before going to bed, not one degree variation in temperature will be noticed when you get up in the morning, even with the temperature outdoors from 10 to 20 degress below zero.

I WILL DEPOSIT THE SUM OF $5,000.00

With the Fort Wayne Outfitters of this city, said amount to be paid to any manufacturer or dealer in stoves who will produce a hard coal base burner Saturday, Oct. 8, 1910, that will burn all the ingredients of Anthracite Coal, such as Carbon Monixide, commonly called poisonous gases, or will heat the same amount of space, at the same cost as the Searchlight Utility does.

J. B. Howard
INVENTOR.

YOU DIDN'T KNOW THAT BASE BURNERS WERE ALWAYS MADE WRONG, DID YOU?

It is a fact, nevertheless. They are constructed contrary to all rules governing the science of heating and radiation. During the past fifty years only the outward appearance of the base burner has been changed. The slight changes to the interior construction has not increased the radiating capacity more than 2 per cent. It will pay you greatly to attend these demonstrations by Mr. J. B. Howard as he will talk upon all points of the stove making industry.

The Searchlight Utility is the Only Heating Device on the face of the earth that burns coal and maintains a steady even heat throughout the night, including stove, base burner, furnace, steam or hot water boilers.

The Searchlight Utility will Heat Three Times the Space, has twice the life, and will take a ton less of hard coal, when the same amount of space and heat is taken into consideration, than any base burner made.

7,591 Square Inches of Radiating Surface. The Searchlight has four times more direct radiating surface than the base burner.

The Searchlight Rolling Top does away with the swing top, which not only makes a great deal of noise but covers up a large amount of heating surface.

Searchlight Utility Floor Heater.

Manufactured by Utility Stove & Range Co. Indianapolis, Ind.

NO DIRT, NO GAS, NO CINDERS ASHES AS FINE AS POWDER

The J. B. Howard Combustion (patented) and used exclusively in the Searchlight Utility for burning anthracite coal, burns the carbon monixide or poisonous gases, which were never consumed or utilized in the history of burning anthracite coal.

No Fine Ashes Settling Over the Stove and Furniture When Shaking. The dust flue, leading up from the ash pit, disposes of the fine ashes when the grate is shaken, through the interior of the stove and up the chimney.

As a Fire Keeper It is a Wonder. It will hold fire seven days and seven nights with one filling and will do the same work twenty-five years from now.

We Guarantee the Fire-Pot to Last Twenty-five Years. The fire-Pot is so constructed that the heat is radiated to the floor for a space of five feet around the stove. Remember, the base burner heats under the stove and is a cat warmer, not a floor heater in the proper sense.

The Most Economical Hard Coal Stove on Earth. Why? Because it burns all the poisonous gases that never were utilized in the history of the burning of anthracite coal. It is not the original cost of a stove, but the cost to operate it that counts. The Searchlight Utility is an investment that will pay for itself in a short time.

The J. B. Howard Combustion has made the Hot Blast Florence famous for burning soft coal and will make the Searchlight Utility Return-Flue Floor Heater famous for burning hard coal.

FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

The Searchlight Utility is a Furnace on the Parlor Floor. The J. B. Howard Combustion is a gas producer in a stove.

THE ROMANCE OF THE TELEPHONE.

The telephone, which is now taken for granted as a commonplace accessory of everyday life, was, hardly more than a quarter of a century ago, an unheard of thing, and had the visionary who dreamed of its first crude form, told his dream, its impossibility would have been quickly pointed out to him. The wonderful romance which Mr. Herbert N. Casson has unfolded under the title "The History of the Telephone" (just published by A. C. McClurg & Co.) is interesting from more than one point of view, but perhaps the most fascinating aspect of the story is that which shows the will power of Alexander Graham Bell and his associates in overcoming apparent impossibilities by invention after invention each necessary to counter some unforseen difficulty.

But the sory of Bell's persistence is only half the story of the telephone's inception. The other half deals with the part, just as large as Bell's, played by Fate.

For, however fantastic it may sound, as a matter of fact Fate had the most to do with the survival of the telephone, although it seemed bent upon crushing it more than once. For instance Fate made Bell an expert in vocal acoustics and then luckily made him rather ignorant of electricity. "Had I known more about electricity, and less about sound," he said, "I would never have invented the telephone." He would have seen impossibilities, in that case, which were real then and which only subsequent invention enabled him and his co-workers to overcome. Then the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia opened its doors only two months after the invention of his first crude model, an instrument roughly patterned on the same plan as the present day receiver. By the influence of Gardiner Hubbard, a small table was found for this freak toy that nobody took seriously. It was only by a fortunate accident that Bell himself visited the exposition one day—his poverty had dictated his absence—and the judges, reaching his exhibit at the end of a tiring day, did not think it worth investigating. But even as they turned away from it with jesting remarks, an incident happened which Mr. Casson says would make a chapter in the "Arabian Knights."

"Accompanied by his wife, the Empress Theresa, and by a bevy of courtiers, the emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro de Alcaniara, talked into the room, advanced with both hands outstretched to the bewildered [illegible] and exclaimed: 'Professor Bell, [illegible] delighted to see you again.' The judges at once forgot the heat and the fatigue and the hunger. Who was this young inventor, with the pale complexion and black eyes, that he should be the friend of emperors? They did not know, and for the moment even Bell himself had forgotten that Dom Pedro had once visited Bell's class of deaf-mutes at Boston university. He was especially interested in such humanitarian work, and had recently helped to organize the first Brazilian school for deaf-mutes at Rio de Janeiro. And so, with the tall, blond-bearded Dom Pedro in the center, the assembled judges and scientists—there were fully fifty in all—entered with unusual zest into the proceedings of this first telephone exhibition.

"A wire had been strung from one end of the room to the other, and while Bell went to the transmitter, Dom Pedro took up the receiver and placed it to his ear. It was a moment of tense expectancy. No one knew clearly what was about to happen, when the emperor, with a dramatic gesture, raised his head from the receiver and exclaimed with a look of utter amazement: 'My God—it talks!'"

There are some tides that an emperor may turn back and the ridicule of the infant telephone was one of them.

Sir William Thomson, later Lord Kelvin, was among the judges and became enthusiastic in his praise of the instrument. It became the star attraction of the exposition and famous—though scoffed at in most quarters—all over the world.

From this point the romance of invention still goes on but another romance begins—that of "the business end." The first incorporators put all they had into the exploitation of the new invention and there was little enough at that to meet all the reverses that were to come. At one time Bell and his associates were so discouraged that they offered to sell the invention to the Western Union Telegraph company for $100.000 and the Western Union refused to pay such a price for a toy. It was not long, however, before that corporation formed a company with three times that capital to fight what had become a perceptible nibbling at its business. Years of legal conflict followed, ended by victory for the Bell company. Then came an era of expansion, reorganization and the fitting of the telephone for all demands that could be made upon it. It had emerged from adolescence into a full fledged factor in the commercial growth and prosperity of the United States particularly and then of the world. This, however, attracted the banditti of finance and men who once had scoffed now turned up as "previous inventors," backed by these robbers, and endeavored to steal the prosperity of the telephone. Defeated one by one, a company was at last formed which lumped all their claims and all the Bell battles had to be refought. The whole story of this side of telephone progress, says Mr. Casson, is an indictment of American methods of protecting inventors.

But the Bell companies triumphed, and Mr. Casson tells how they netted America over with wires and brought about a stage of civilization that would have been absolutely impossible without the telephone. The great personalities who vitalized the telephone, from Bell and Hubbard down to Theodore Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, a pioneer of the telephone, who has been recalled to present day leadership after he had once retired, are graphically depicted.

The story unfolded is a remarkable one. At the present day the telephone has become as much an integral part of our daily lives as the clock and the watch. In the city no family is without one, no business house can do a day's business without its aid, every train that moves, every ship that leaves harbor, every event on track or turf depend upon it, doctor and patient, and lawyer and client are brought together by it. The history of this marvelous invention is one, therefore, that concerns everybody.

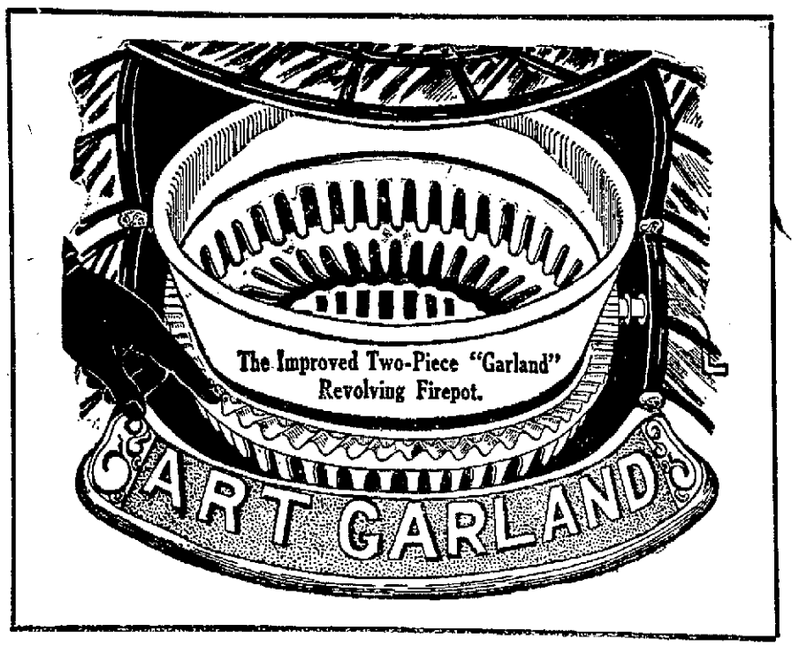
"Art Garland"
The Stove With the Revolving Fire Pot



Look at It

Notice it's made in two pieces. That's to allow the air to pass into the fire instead of all coming in at the bottom. Hot fire where you want it, at the outside edge instead of the middle, where you get little radiation from it.
The lower piece revolves—just put the crank on, give it a turn, and the fire pot is as clean as a whistle.

A MEETING WITH CARLYLE.

Recollections of a Boy Whose Father Let Him See the Great Man.

(Ford Madox Hueffer in Harper's Magazine for October.)

I remember being taken for a walk by my father along what appeared to me to be a gray stone quay. I presume it was the Chelsea embankment, and there we met a very old, long bearded man who frightened me quite as much as any of the other great Victorian figures who, in the eye of a child, appeared monumental, loud voiced and distressing. This particular gentleman, at the instance of my father, related to me how we had once been at Weimar. In a garden restaurant beneath a may tree in bloom he had seen Schiller and Goethe drinking coffee together. He had given a waiter a thaler to be allowed to put on a white apron and to wait upon those two world-shaking men, who, in court dress with wigs and swords, sat at a damask covered table. He had waited upon them.

Later, I remember that while I was standing with my father beside the doorstep in Tite street of the house that I was entering, I fell down and he bent over to assist me to rise. His name was Thomas Carlyle, but he is almost confounded in my mind with a gentleman called Pepper. Pepper was much resembled by Carlyle, except that he was exceedingly dirty. He used to sell penny dreadfuls, which I was forbidden to purchase; and I think the happiest times of my childhood were spent in a large coal cellar into which I used to lock myself to read of the exploits of Harkaway Dick, who lived in a hollow tree, possessed a tame, black panther and a pair of Winchester repeating rifles, with which at one sitting he shot no less than forty-five pirates through a loophole in the bark of the tree. I think I have never since so fully tasted of the joys of life, not even when Captain Hook—but what was even Peter Pan to compare with Harkaway Dick!

LOST GOLD MINE IN MEXICO HAS BEEN FOUND AGAIN

One of the Few Really "Lost Mines" and It Will Be Worked Once More.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 7.—Mexican officials at Cananea yesterday announced the re-discovery of the old Santa Fe Teresa gold mine, one of the few really "lost mines" of the southwest, which was known to have been worked by the Spaniards more than a century ago, and which has been lost since 1810.

The main shaft was well preserved but the timbers had been removed and the earth caved in. Two skeletons were found at the bottom of the shaft. Indians had kept possession of the mine so long that its location had become a mystery to the Mexicans. The Mexican government is now making arrangements to take charge of the mine.

WOMEN WON HOBBLE SKIRTS.

They Walked Seventeen Miles to Prove Their Physical Powers.

(New York World.)

A lovely pink and green hobble skirt apiece will be given some day soon to Mrs. John Schmidt and Mrs. Charles Bauer, of Middle Village, Queens, because they won a bet that they could walk from Middle Village to Freeport, about seventeen miles. The person they bet with was only a mana, George Heinrichs. If the women had lost each would have paid him $1.39.

Heinrichs and Mrs. Schmidt, who are next door neighbors, were gossiping over a fence a few days ago when the talk turned to the relative physical powers of men and women.

"Why, take running," said Heinrichs. "I'll bet you Mel Shepard could run ten miles with a pair of rubber boots on while a woman with a hobble skirt was getting from the butcher's to the dressmaker's, right across the street."

"Is—that—so," drawled Mrs. Schmidt sneeringly. "Well, just to show you what women can do, I'll bet you Mrs. Bauer and myself can walk from here to Freeport. Maybe you'll believe then that women are some walkers."

Heinrichs guaranteed to present a hobble skirt to each woman if they performed that feat. They dug into the egg money they had been saving and each posted $1.39 against a hobble skirt.

Early the women started out. Heinrichs had gone to Freeport by train the night before to meet them if they arrived. The women plodded on and on, and after about six hours of walking and resting arrived in Freeport. Heinrichs had heard from a friend in Rockville Center that he was likely to lose his shirt, for the women were on their way. To show he was a good loser Heinrichs hired the Freeport band, and when the trampers arrived within a mile of town they were met by the musicians and a crowd of villagers. Thus they reached their journey's end in triumph.

"I've got a big blister on each foot, thank you," was Mrs. Schmidt's only reply when asked how she felt.

FEMININE GOOD MANNERS.

The Decay of Politeness Is the Tragedy of Modern Life.

(London News.)

Are we losing our manners? Alas, for the answer to that question, we have but to look around us—on a world which has forgotten its manners, if, indeed, it ever remembered them! The decay of manners is writ only too large on the face of our up-to-date life. And the fact is all the more deplorable because we literally have everything that aspiring humanity years after in the material realm. We have motors to speedus on land, flying machines to bear us through the air; we have speaking tubes and telephones to facilitatae our intercourse, and can "rush" to the top of our bent—but we have not got manners.

The decay of good manners is the tragedy of modern life—and what is the reason? Whence comes this falling off of those exterior graces which are the salt of society, whether it be spelt with a big "S" or a small? For after all, what is society without manners, and why have we not preserved this precious heritage in our midst? Why are good manners practically extinct? To all such questions there must be an answer—and it is surely worth the seeking.

Is it the motor craze that leaves us no time to be polite? "The very word is like a bell" to toll us back to early Victorian days, when our grandmothers learned etiquette out of prim manuals, and the making of a gentleman was voted the most important part of a liberal education. For our forebears believed that, as good old William of Wyckham had it, "Manners makyth man;" how much more do they make woman! We know that these ideas once prevailed, because we recognize a few such happy individuals possessed of manners even yet, though they strike us as prehistoric survivals, not without their pathos.

Are "phones" at the bottom of the matter? One has an uneasy suspicion that the telephone has much to answer for in destroying the conversational ideal. No one can pretend that this has gained by improved methods of communication. "A voice soft, gentle and low, is," the poet assures us, "an excellent thing in woman," but when that same voice cries "Hello! are you there?" it does not sound her ideal greeting.

To come down to "terra firma"—for there must be ultimately alight—is it possible that women's clubs have anything to do with the disappearance of polite ideals? Has the subtle influence of the smoking room, with its "laissez-faire" atmosphere and abrogation of once reverenced etiquette tended to minimize those little courtesies which were once the hallmark of high breeding, and are now respected like old coins, valued for their antiquarian interest—but not current? For there is a distinct feeling abroad that it is a waste of time to stand on ceremony with one's neighbors, and a democratic age scoffs at what it deems the airs and graces of a courtlier era. At associates fine manner with insincerity and superficiality, yet the profounder student of human nature will tell you that manners are a matter of the heart when all is said.

RHEUMATISM
PAINFUL & DANGEROUS

Rheumatism is due to a diseased condition of the blood cells and corpuscles, brought about by an excess of uric acid in the circulation. It is not only a very painful disease but an extremely dangerous trouble. The briny, acrid state of the blood gradually forms a coating over the muscles, and by depositing a cement-like substance in the joints frequently terminates fatally, or leaves its victim a hopeless cripple. It is natural to "doctor" the spot that hurts, and it is quite right to use liniments, hot applications, etc., to get temporary relief from a painful joint or swollen tendon; but Rheumatism is not a skin disease, and such things, when depended on alone make one careless, and the disease gets a firmer hold on the blood. S. S. S. cures the disease because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation, and removes every particle of the irritating uric acid, builds up the blood, makes it rich and oily, and in this way prepares it for the proper nourishment of all joints, muscles, nerves and bones. If you have Rheumatism, get the uric acid out of the blood by taking S. S. S., a purely vegetable medicine, and enjoy freedom from its misery. ATTEMPT TO SHOOT CHINESE PRINCE IS FOILED

San Francisco Chinaman is Arrested Just as He Is About to Fire.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—An attempt to kill Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the emperor of China, as he stepped from the Overland train at Oakland, half an hour before boarding the liner Chiyo Maru for the return trip to China, was frustrated yesterday afternoon by Harry Moffitt, secre service operative, and Detective Sergeant George McMahon, of the local police department, when they seized George Fong, a member of the Young China association, as he was about to draw a revolver with which to fire upon the royal visitor.

Fong was handcuffed and quickly taken from the crowd that had gathered at the station to welcome the prince upon his return to this city from his visit to the east. Fong was taken across the bay on a ferryboat, and hurried to Moffitt's offices, where he confessed his intention to assassinate Prince Tsai Hsun. A five-chambered revolver, fully loaded, was found in his pocket.

Few Knew of Arrest.

The arrest was made so quickly and quietly that neither Prince Tsai, any one of his retinue, nor any member of the reception party knew of it until the steamer was ready to sail. Then Rear Admiral Thomas S. Phelps, representing the government of the United States in the final ceremonies attending the visitor's departure, was informed by Moffitt of what had happened.

Whether the prince was told of his close call from death was not learned.

In his statement to secret service men, Fong denied that his action was the result of a conspiracy. He said that the organization to which he belongs, while revolutionary in tendency, is in no way responsible for his attempt to slay the prince.

Fong expressed regret that he had not accomplished his purpose, saying that he wanted to be a martyr to the cause to which he had consecrated his life, and that he wanted to awaken his countrymen. He said he would have considered it an honor to have been put to death had he accomplished what he set out ot do.

Seized as He Hesitated.

The would-be assassin said he hesitated before drawing his revolver because the crowd had closed in around the royal party and he did not desire to injure anyone except Prince Tsai. It was at that moment that Moffitt and McMahon seized him.

Fong is a native of San Francisco. He has been living in Berkeley, where he was employed as a cook in a fraternity house.

In his statement to the authorities, Fong, who speaks good English, said: "I tried to kill Prince Tsai Hsun because he is an enemy of my people. I did the best I could, but my work in this particular case is over for awhile. It will be taken up again elsewhere, I can assure you."

PRISONER IS UNCONCERNED.

Jokes and Plays Cards Though Indicted for Murder of Townsman.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 7.—According to a dispatch received here yesterday from Kankakee, Ill., John A. Oglesbey, of South Bend, formerly a member of the law firm of Oglesbey, Oglesbey & Oglesbey, of Tipton, Ind., was indicted yesterday on the charge of murdering Frank Silver Kanouse, also of South Bend, at Kankakee last month. Kanouse eloped from South Bend with Oglesbey's wife and the latter, following the couple, found Kanouse in a Kankakee saloon, shooting him on sight. Oglesbey appears little concerned over the outcome of his case, and passes the time playing cards and joking with other prisoners.

SUPREME COURT DECISION

Holds Druggist Liable for Sale by His Clerk.

Indianapolis, Oct. 7.—The right of the creditors of a purchaser of a stock of goods for trade, to recover or levy on the goods after the goods had been redelivered as the culmination of a conditional sale, was denied in a decision by the second division of the appellate court yesterday. The responsibility of a druggist for the criminal acts of a clerk was upheld in a decision in the supreme court. The illegal sale of intoxicating liquor was involved in the second case.

In the decision in the case of Edwin Able et al vs. William E. Summerville and the Ward Bros. Drug company, appealed from the Marion superior court, it was set out that Summerville had purchased from the Ward company a stock of drugs to be retailed at Hagerstown, Ind. Summerville had, in addition to giving a mortgage on the property, agreed to certain terms relating to the time of payment. The goods were recovered by Ward Bros. because of a violation of the contract. Able sought recovery on the stock, alleging that Summerville had concealed the fact that the goods were mortgaged and that credit had been extended. The higher court approved a ruling by the lower court sustaining a demurrer to the complaint.

Lindsay O. Walters, a druggist of Spencer county, by a decision of the supreme court, lost an appeal by which he sought to disprove his responsibility for the sale of a half pint of liquor by William P. Smoot, a clerk, in violation of the liquor laws. The opinion was written by Judge Monigomery. A dissenting opinion by Judge Jordan denied the responsibility of an innocent principal for the criminal acts of his agent.

King of Stomach Remedies Free to Try

It is the opinion of all who have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that it has no equal in the cure of ailments pertaining to the stomach, liver and bowels. We only have room here to print a few letters recently received, but it is a fact that thousands have been received. In complaints like constipation, headache, biliousness, drowsiness after eating, heartburn, gas on the stomach, and similar troubles, whether in infancy or old age, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the one reliable remedy for you to take. Its action is so mild that it can be given to a baby—in fact, thousands of mothers buy it for their children—and yet it is sufficiently strong so that the most robust person will get action. People who use Syrup Pepsin never again take salts or cathartic pills, which often, by their violence, do much to upset the stomach, for Syrup Pepsin is pleasant to take and does its work permanently. Many have been able to do away entirely with the use of medicines after but a brief experience with Dr. Caldwell's wonderful remedy. It is sold in fifty cent and one dollar bottles and any druggist can supply you. But if you prefer to make a trial of it first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward a free sample bottle to your home.

Look for This Picture on Pkg.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

The following are some extracts from letters Dr. Caldwell has received:

"It is with great pleasure that I recommend Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. For years my husband was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion and bilious colic. I gave him everything I could think of, but he grew rapidly worse. I happened to think of the bottle of Syrup Pepsin a friend had left with me, which I would not give him at the time. I gave it to him now and he improved from the first two doses. He is now a well man and we have never been without Syrup Pepsin in the house since."—Mrs. D. M. Davis, Griggsville, Ill.

"I cannot say enough for Syrup Pepsin. It is a god-send to suffering people. My stomach was in a terrible shape. Am glad to say it is all O. K. now and am feeling fine. Both myself and husband are using Syrup Pepsin and will never be without it. I have had three of my neighbors get Syrup Pepsin and they think it is fine."—Mrs. Eva Gaskins, No. 304 Madison St., Topeka, Kas.

"I have had stomach trouble for over two years and always thought I had heart trouble, for I had pains in my left side. My heart and nerves were weak. I have had a good many doctors but none helped me. I got one of your little books, read it, bought one bottle of Syrup Pepsin to try. The very first bottle helped me and I have used three 50c bottles and feel like a new man. I can eat, sleep and work every day"—Rudy Kasper, No. 364 8th St., Moline, Ill.

"I am pleased to write and let you know that Syrup Pepsin is the greatest remedy on earth for all stomach troubles. I had had stomach trouble for more than five or six years and I tried all kinds of medicines without their doing me any good, but now I thing I want and three square meals a day."—P. B. Garellas, Wagoner, Okla.

MAETERLINCK

"The Blue Bird's Author, His Life and Work.

Maurice Maeterlinck, author of "The Blue Bird," now being presented at the New theater, New York, is unusual even for a poet, but he has an abundance of common sense and is quite human. All through life Maeterlinck has been something of an enigma to even his intimate friends. He was born in Ghent, Belgium, August 29, 1862, and during his forty-eight years he has trodden the paths of the mystic and philosopher. Following a course of study under private tutors, he entered the Jesuit College of St. Barbe, at Ghent. After his graduation he took a course in law, and was admitted to the bar, but the life of a barrister did not appeal to him, and after one or two court appearances he returned to short story writing. The tales were much on the style of De Maupassant, and while they met with favor in literary circles, Maeterlinck's neighbors could make neither head nor tail to them. Even litterateurs were not at all certain in their own minds as to the real worth of the poet's work. Maeterlinck, however, clung to two strong supporters whom he had met during his college days, and it was largely their praise which gave him courage to continue. These men were the poets, Charles Van Leberghe and Gregoire Le Roi.

General acknowledgement did not come to Maeterlinck until he had reached the age of twenty-seven. He had written "La Princess Maleine," but coould find no publisher, and was about to stow away the play in a pigeonhole until a more propitious time when a friend offered to set up the manuscript in type if he would turn the crank of a hand press. The poet agreed, and in this way the work was published. The edition comprised twenty-five copies anad not long after the little books were set in circulation a copy fell into the hands of Octave Mirabeau. Mirabeau was so impressed with the play that he wrote a three-column review of it in Le Figaro, of Paris, and set the world talking. No one was more astounded at this recognition than the poet's own friends in Ghent; none more delighted than the litterateurs, for they were now backed by an opinion from an unquestioned authority and could continue their praise without fear of contradiction. In this connection it is interesting to note that the poet's relatives were scandalized at seeing the "respectable name of Maeterlinck on the title page of a work."

About this time Maeterlinck went to Paris, where he took modest quarters, and succeeded in following his inclination to work in seclusion. Instead of frequenting the cafes where literary Paris gathered, he spent much of his time about the quays and in hunting book stalls. Now and then he rode his wheel into the country, but only on such occasions as he needed utter solitude to digest what he had read or acquired by personal observation. Friends who sought him out and succeeded in finding him invariably remarked that the poet never seemed to work. He was gently affable, never effusive, always polite. Never did they come upon him with pen or paper, and they could not understand how work after work came from his hand.

Maeterlinck has been described as an artist-philosopher similar to Ibsen and Shaw. But unlike Ibsen, he does not trust to action alone to reveal the symbolic lesson of his dramas or to carry his message. After the manner of Shaw he expounds his aims in essays. Into his earlier dramas Maeterlinck wove the ideas of destiny, the unknown determining force of life, and he accomplished this with a spiritual sensitiveness more delicate than that displayed by any other modern writer. He gives no detailed plan or scheme of predestination save in the simple symbol of "The Blue Bird." "Destiny" figures much more in the early than the later dramas. He was very much the fatalist in his early plays and essays because he had no place for freedom of will—it was all predestination—man swung by destiny. But since the publication of the volume of essays called "Wisdom and Destiny," in which he said that will, courage, wisdom and love could help man to overcome destiny, he has never returned to his early absolute fatalism. In his most recent essays he has dwelt on the importance of scientific observation more than on mystical intuition. For his earlier ideas he has been called a fatalist.

Close friends of the poet agree that in Mme. Leblanc, Maeterlinck has a wife whose inspiration has been of untold value. Of her Alfred Sutro recently wrote:

"She is a woman of rare intellect and charm, with a touch of genius herself, and she has been the ideal helpmate to her poet husband. There are traces of her in the stately Aglavaine, in Vanna, Joyzelle. Through the pages of 'Wisdom and Destiny,' a book that posterity, it may be, shall yet proclaim his masterpiece, there moves a woman's figure that his friends do not fail to identify, even without the aid of the beautiful dedication. Mme Maeterlinck has stood between him and the jarring world, kept the yelling 'market' at bay, and inspired him where inspiration was needed. She, perhaps, like the exquisite figure of Light in the play, has known where to look for the bluebird of happiness."

Maeterlinck himself is deaf to music and his wife decides all questions referred to Maeterlinck about the score used in productions of his plays.

NO LOW RATE FOR TEACHERS.

The western lines have refused to allow a lower rate than two cents per mile for the annual meeting of the National Educational association in San Francisco in July. This means that the rate from Chicago will be $62.50 for the round trip. Three or four years ago the eastern roads took similar action and the place of holding the convention was changed from Philadelphia to Los Angeles on account of it. Conditions have changed since and there will be no change in the convention city.

ONLY ONE AIRSHIP ENTERS FOR THE LONG RACE

Not Enough Equipment for More in Chicago—New York Attempt.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Only one entrant—Eugene Ely—will make the attempt to fly from Chicago to New York tomorrow for the $30,000 prize offered by the Chicago Evening Post and the New York Times. Three aviators will make the technical start to comply with the requirements of the race that three men actually start. The other two, however, will make no effort to encompass the 1,000 mile trip, but will land shortly after starting and will ship their machine to points along the route in readiness to supply Ely's machine with any part which he may require.

This was decided by the entrants, all of whom are of the Glenn Curtiss forces, at a conference today. Ely, Willard and McCurdy drew straws and the long one fell to Ely, the only married one of the trio. Augustus Post was not considered as a possibility. Ely has flown for two years, but has participated in the trial flights at Hawthorn aerodrome only once. He was given a license of the Aero Club of America as an aviator only last Sunday.

"The reason for this new move should be apparent at once," said Ely, in explaining the decision. "It would be absolutely impossible for all three aeroplanes to make that long journey. It would require a larger reserve of engines and parts to be used in repairs than there are in existence."

It is doubtful that Ely can start before 3 p. m.

The aviators at a meeting this afternoon decided to delay Ely's start until Sunday. Representatives of the Evening Post protested vigorously against only one man starting in the race, but while Mr. Curtiss said he would try to find parts enough to start another machine, he saw little chance of success.

FIVE HUNDRED ARE HOMELESS BY FLOOD

Immense Damage in South Part of Indiana and in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 7.—Almost unprecedented rains have fallen in the lower Ohio valley during the past three days and as a result the Ohio threatens to reach a flood stage in a few days. In the past thirty-six hours the river at Paducah, Ky., has risen 6.3 feet. At Evansville, Ind., the river was rising at the rate of three-tenths of a foot an hour. The rain fall at the latter point totalled eleven inches in 48 hours, breaking the record in that section for the forty years.

At Louisville, Owensboro and other points in Kentucky and Evansville, Boonville and other points in southern Indiana, the rain of the past few days has caused damage amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, it is estimated. Bridges have been carried away, crops are totally destroyed, railroad tracks washed away and various other losses have been caused.

A dispatch from Boonville, Ind., states that five hundred people are homeless and that the deluge has destroyed more than a million dollars worth of property in southern Indiana. Damage to bridges and roads in six counties in Kentucky has been placed at a half million dollars.

According to the officials of the weather bureau here the rain siege was one of the longest and most damaging in years.

McCloud had been working for a paving contractor in East Chicago and late yesterday was ordered to take the roller to Gary to work on another contract. McCloud did not report into Gary last night but this morning the roller was found in the contractor's yard with a woman's veil proudly fluttering from the engine's whistle, but the driver was not around and now the police are on the hunt for McCloud to get an explanation of the joy ride.

WORDS OF BISHOP MISQUOTED BY PAPERS

Methodist Divine is Made to Say That Protestantism is Dying Out.

Bishop W. A. Sellew, of Jamestown, N. Y., who is presiding at the sessions of the North Indiana conference of the Free Methodist churches being held at the Bowser Free Methodist church in this city, received a telegram at noon today from the Daily News, of Buffalo, N. Y., asking him to reply to alleged statements made by him in an address delivered at the Pittsburg conference of his church, held three weeks ago at Pittsburg, in which he said that Protestantism was dying out and rapidly on the decline.

Bishop Sellew sent an emphatic denial. In his Pittsburg address he was replying to the statement made by an eminent Catholic priest that "the Protestant religion is dying after three hundred years of senile decay." He took occasion to quote the words of this Catholic speaker and commented on them in his address, showing that instead of dying out the Protestan religion was making grand advances.

One of the newspapers of Pittsburg, however, garbled his address and attributed to the bishop the statement that "the Protestant religion is dying out." This was copied in many other newspapers and since then Bishop Sellew has been flooded with letters and telegrams condemning him and denouncing him as a hypocrite.

In an address this week at New York city, Rev. Bernard Vaughn, a Jesuit priest, quoted the bishop's alleged words and strongly commended him. It was this sermon of Father Vaughn, widely published, that brought the telegram of inquiry from the Buffalo News.

PROHIBITION KANSAS.

It is customary for the brewers, whenever fighting restraint of the liquor traffic, to misrepresent facts and figures from states that are under a prohibitory or county option law.

It is not likely, however, that the Nebraska liquor interests will make much use in this fall's county option campaign of any facts they may garner from prohibition Kansas.

During the past year forty-eight of the 105 Kansas counties, with a population of 430,274, did not send a single prisoner to the state penitentiary.

Fifty-seven out of the 105 counties had not a single pauper.

Eighty-seven of the 105 counties did not send a single insane patient to an institution.

Kansas' death rate is the lowest in the world, 7½ in 1,000 persons.

The state still boasts of the lowest percentage of illiteracy.

Kansas bank deposits have increased from $70,000,000 to $190,000,000.

All of this has happened under ten years of prohibition.

Not being compelled to use their money for taxes to support prisons, poor houses and insane asylums, which are largely filled by victims of liquor, the people of Kansas are able to buy automobiles, anad to use their taxes in building school houses and improving health conditions.

Prohibition has been a success in Kansas because that state has elected officials who enforce the law.—Omaha News.

The window is dressed in red and the glistening glass and rich wood-work and large display of the celebrated "Rose Hats" in every shape, make a background for the numerous styles and shapes of hats that the firm handles that cannot be excelled. If You Do Not Take It Ask Your Neighbors

What They Think of

THE SENTINEL

Fort Wayne's Greatest Newspaper

Ask them especially about that big twenty-eight-page paper that THE SENTINEL gives its readers EVERY SATURDAY.

They will tell you that it contains everything of interest that happens in and around Fort Wayne and surrounding towns. All the news of all the world, gathered by the wonderful Associated Press. No corner of the world is so remote that the Associated Press does not reach it, and its wires run into The Sentinel building.

Next Saturday's Sentinel will be an especially interesting paper, with its twenty-eight pages full of news and high-class miscellaneous reading, and there will be full page articles, finely illustrated, on

Duels With the Underworld

The first of a new series of articles on crimes and criminals. This week this page is written by William P. Sheridan, the man with the camera eye, who once seeing a criminal never forgets him. Mr. Sheridan was formerly lieutenant of the New York police and knows more famous criminals by sight than any other man in the world. He tells how organized detective skill battles with and overcomes craft and cunning in detecting and preventing crime.

On the Threshold

Telling of the arrival of our brothers and sisters from across the great water, and their entrance into the promised land. From Ellis Island the newcomers peer feverishly into the great new world. Little human sidelights in a big picture.

Sport Royal—Gunning for Ruffed Grouse

With a wise dog, a good comrade and a clear day the enthusiast can find no better combination and no game more worthy of pursuit. Handsome illustrations showing the dog and man at work. How the grouse fools the sportsman and how he watches the hunter.

Our Nine Man Invasion of Brazil

Told by one of the men who took part in an adventure that reads like extravagant fiction. Desperate hand to hand fighting—perilous flight and memorable capture.

Practical Fashions for the School Outfit

Is the title for the Misses' page next Saturday. It shows the dainty dresses the young lady should wear on the different occasions of her school life. Another talk on social amenities for the school girl. Braiding ornamental fancy work. Easily made guest room desk sets.

Skibby Wakes a Dreamer

Skibby finds his old friends the Ingles family in hard circumstances. He tells Bart where he can get a job. Bart don't want a job. He intends becoming president of the United States. No small position for him. Skibby takes him to a moving picture show. Bart finds that a messenger boy can be as great a hero as Richard the Lion Hearted. He takes the job as messenger boy and puts off becoming president until later.

The Widow Wise

Just as dainty and charming as last week. This time she falls in love with the riding master, a German count in disguise. Just before the wedding she discovers that the count is also engaged to her dressmaker. She compels the count to marry—the dressmaker. Illustrated in two colors.

News and Views of Farmers

The agricultural page that is looked on as authority by all readers of The Sentinel. Every idea advanced has been tried and proven by men of experience—men who make their living and fortunes in agriculture.

Did the End Justify

A story page by Olivia Howard Dunvar, a fiction writer of note. Some of us would say that the end did justify, others that it would not. It is a question that each has to decide for themselves. Read and form your own conclusions.

The Conway Dinner

The story on the Boys' and Girls' page. Grandfather invites the Conways to dinner, but as grandfathers sometimes do, got his dates mixed and had them come a week earlier than was intended. They arrive when mother is away and Betty and Hetty have to prepare the dinner and entertain their aristocratic guests.

Two Colored Comic Pages

Your Uncle Mun, aided by a parasol and his ability as a broncho buster, saves Dot from an enraged bull and covers himself with glory. Buster Brown becomes a bomb thrower and by the aid of a round melon scares a couple of old kickers into a fit. The Tiny Tads go to Pickleland and see the cucumbirds, the daffodill-pickles and gingeraffes.

The Woman's Page

Gives a great many good ideas that will interest every lady reader of The Sentinel. Latest in fashions, suggestions in housekeeping, etc.

Society Page

All the latest happenings in Fort Wayne society circles. All the news of Fort Wayne's smart set. Parties of the week and events that are to come.

ALL THE NEWS OF PULPIT AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A PAGE OF SERMON AND SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

ALL THE LATEST GOSSIP AND SCORES OF THE BASEBALL DIAMOND.

ALL THE NEWS OF SHOP AND RAIL.

Every newsdealer in Fort Wayne can supply you with a Saturday Sentinel—only five cents. One-third the price of an ordinary magazine, and more good reading than the best of them.

A call on either phone 173 will bring THE SENTINEL to your door every week-day evening for only ten cents per week. Try it.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7.—With weather in Argentine favorable for the growth of wheat and with big shipments expected from ports on the Black Sea, the market here turned downward today. Trade, however, was light and in the absence of selling pressure quotations showed a tendency to rally. The general impression was that the short interest was as big as at any time recently. The opening was ¼c to ¾c lower. December started at 97⅞c to 98c, a loss of ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅜c but recovered to 98⅛@98¼c.

Buying in the corn pit seemed decidedly limited. Offerings were heavy. December opened ⅛@⅞c to ½@⅝c off at 49⅛c to 49⅜c and steadied around 49¼c.

Bears attempted to depress oats, but without much success. December started ⅛c down at 32⅝c to 34½@34⅝c, and recovered to 32¾@32⅞c.

Absence of demand let hog products fall. First sales were unchanged to 22½c lower with January at $17.77½ for pork, $10.77½ for lard and $9.45 to $9.47½ for ribs.

SCHOOL OF CUTTING AND DRESSMAKING. Day and night classes. Pupils admitted at any time during this term. Patterns cut to measure. A. M. Freeman, 1114 Harrison St. 9-27-1m

S. T. TAYLOR SCHOOL OF DRESSMAKING and DESIGNING — Do not conflict our system with imitated, imperfect, so-called tailor systems which are soon discarded after being learned. Always bear in mind the S. T. TAYLOR SYSTEM is the original Taylor System invented in 1848. It can be adapted to every change in fashion—and always leads. Many other methods have been introduced, but so far none to equal it. Ours is the only system which applies actual measurements to both its lines and curves. It is self-calculating and makes drafts so accurately that fitting is practically unnecessary. Fitted linings guaranteed. Patterns cut to measurement from any illustration. WINTER TERM COMMENCES November 15. Positively the LAST OPPORTUNITY to learn our system in Fort Wayne. All desiring to learn must engage table space on or before November 15. Pupils admitted to commence lessons at any time after October 10. Day and evening school. Call or write for information. Offices and schoolrooms second floor No. 720 Calhoun St., opposite court house. Phone 1851. 9-13-tf

JAIL AWAITS SMUGGLERS NOW

Uncle Sam Hereafter Will Imprison Travelers Who Evade Customs.

New York, Oct. 7.—Jail sentences are to be imposed hereafter on travelers who seek to evade Uncle Sam's customs law. Offenders caught smuggling recently have been fined heavily and released. Judge Hand, in the United States court yesterday, in imposing a fine of $5,000 upon Mengo Morgenthau, a wealthy candy manufacturer, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with failure to declare jewelry and wearing apparel worth $17,000 said: "This is the last time I will let such offenders off with a fine. After this jail sentences will be imposed in addition to fines and I want this declaration given as much publicity as possible." Mr. Morgenthau's goods were forfeited at the time of his return on the Mauretania on Sept. 15.
